FATHER OF WATERS.

A TALK WITH TWO NOTED RIVERMEN.

The Outlets of the Mississippi-What Will Prevent the Overflow of the Blver and Save Millions of Dollars to the Gorernment and People,

A reporter of THE REPUBLICAN Met Captain Thomas P. Leathers, of New Orleans, at the Ebbitt fouse last evening, who is one of the oldest steamboat commanders on the Lower Mississippi.
"How long have you been following the Mississippi River, Captain?" said THE REPUBLICAN. "Nearly a half century," replied the genial old navigator, as he puffed his fine Cuba cigar. "I have served as pilot and commander on that river during the time above mentioned, and in my career as a riverman I have traveled 2,000,000 miles, carried over 3,000,000 bales of cotton, and 250,000 passengers, and in my remarkable experience as a public carrier not one of my passengers ever received the slightest injury." 'Are there many men on the river now that re there when you entered the trade?"

"I am alone. One by one they have all passed away, and I am left as the last sentinel." Here the old here of the Father of Waters raised Here the old here of the Father of Waters raised his deep blue eyes and fixed them steadfartly on This Republican's young man, and said: "I tell you air, it makes me feel said to reflect on the picture I have just draw. I know that my time will soon come, when I too will have to pull in the gauge plank and head for the shore beyond the river of time."

"In your life-long experience as a navigator on the Missistippi River have you paid any attention is to the most practicable plan for refleving the valley from the disastrous overflows which happen so often."

"I have studied the question of the Missistipus."

Goods I have studied the question of the Mississippi GREATLY REDUCED PRICES.

"I have studied the question of the Mississippi River improvement for many years from practical observation, and I am convinced that there is luit one feasible plan by which the Mississippi Valley can be notoleoid from overflow."

"What plan is that, Captain Leathers?"

"It is by the outlet system proposed by Captain John Cowdons, of Tennessee. He has given this subject much study and careful thought. He can demonstrate to Congress the practicability of his plans, which will save the Government millions of dollars and reclaim much of the low lands of the Mississippi and its tributaries that is now worthless. I am here in the interest of the improvement of our river," orthies. I am are in the increase of the committee having consister in charge?"

would like to have your views on the Missispid River improvement."

Certainly, said the nolite Tennesseean, "but still the tell you that I may be called a child of ce Western waters. My father and muther flusted wan the Tennessee River to the Ohlo, down the his to the Missispid down the Mississipid down the Mississipid to be mouth of the White River, in the then Territy of Arkaneas, in two camess lashed together, e ascended the White River to Scarry, near high place I was born. A few yours afterward y father, in his little boat, moved down the Missispid to Eagle Bend, about thirty miles above lock-burg. At that time there was but a dozen milles from Vicksburg to the mouth of the chanseas River, a distance of 200 miles, in which yield. I was raised."

Then you have been raised as it were on the very." river?"
"Yes; I have spent my life on the Mississippi River and its tributaries. I believe I know the river as well as any living man."

"I ruppose you are here to show Congress the best plan for relieving the great overflows in your heat plan for relieving the great overflows in your rivers and valleys?"
"Yes, sir, that is my business, and I think I can do it it without prejudice to any one. My nian is simple, economical, and theroughly practicable. If the Government sees proper to adopt it you will see a great revolution in the improvements in the Mississipply and its branches. I have made the subject of the outlet of the Mississippl River a close study for years and I am thoroughly convinced that I have struck the right plan to accomplish what is most desired—that is, to relieve the disastrous overflows of the Mississippl Valley, which prove such a heavy loss to the people of that section, both in property and life."
"Have you been before the Commerce Committee yet?"

, sir. I was before the House Committee for "No, sir. I was before the House Committee for ic Improvement of the Mississippi River last sturday. I was allowed ample time to answer sels questions as the committee deemed proper to sk and give full explanations on all points of oubt, if there were any. I think the committee very fair one, and are disposed to treat all themes and plans with equal fairness. I pointed at to them the economy and practicability of my system of outlets."

a very fair one, and are disposed to treat all schemes and plans with equal fairiess. I pointed out to them the economy and practicability of my system of outlets."

"You are the futher of the outlet system as proposed by you, are you net?"

"Yes, sir, I am; and I know it is the true plan to be adopted to relieve the great Mississippl Valley of the vast smooth of overflow water."

"Are there many prominent business men in the Valley section who favor your scheme?"

"I will refer you to the following-named wealthy and prominent business men of the Mississippl Valley who have confidence in my system of outlets for the reclamation and draining the overflowed lands: J. C. Clarke, vice-president and general manager of the Chicago, St. Louis and New Orleans Railroad; Charles A. Whitney & Co., mainagers Morgan's Louisiana and Texas Railroad; Charles A. The great spectacular success of this season, The World," will be presented at the National heatre this evening. Its popularity may be meas Theatre this evening. Its popularity may be measured from the statement that it has already enjoyed a run of seven hundred nights at the Drury Lane Theatre, London, and at Wanlack's, New York. The scenery is said to be magnifisent and the mechanical efficies are novel and startling. The company has been carefully selected by Messrs. Brocks and Dickson, and there is opportunity for good acting in the play aside from the spectacular effects.

This young mun, who has come forward as the exponent of the artifactic school, will appear before a Washington public for the first time this evening at Lincoin Hall, where he will deliver his address on "The English Remaissance." The amount of gentle fon that has been poked at Mr. Wilde for his executricities of dress and manuer cannot wipe away the fact that he is possessed of ability of a high order. He has written some very good poetry, is an Oxford graduate, has traveled extensively, and in his address gives utterance to some original and instructive ideas, clothed in heautiful language, to which it will be a picasure to listen. There is every indication that Lincoin Hall will be crowded to night, and that the nuclence will be exceptionally brilliant in its character.

FOR THE LADIES.

King's Palace to Be Enlarged and Re-builf-Enre Bargains Offered. A splendid opportunity for securing all the fashnable goods in millinery at a most remarkably low price is now presented to the ladies of Washington by the offer of King's Palace to sell bly low price is now presented to the ladies of Washington by the offer of King's Palace to sell everything on hand far below cost in order to clear the dack for action previous to the commencement of the work of rebuilding and enlarging the already spacious store. No. 814 Seventh street northwest. The trade of this nopniar boing has increased to such an extent that its present space has become alregister too small for the transaction of its lumenus business, and it is now proposed to extend it the entire depth of the thock to Eighth street, a distance of two hundred feet, covering ficulty six thousand feet of ground, and making it probably the largest millinery store in the United States. The ballos visiting there find a perfect cohorrassment de richasse; ribbous of all whiths, shades, and styles, pattern hats and boinest, trimmed and untrimmed; hats in felt, beaver, slik plush, and seal-skin, in all colous and styles, comprising the flues and largest collection ever exhibited or presented to our dashlomable ladies; the choicest French flowers, feathers, and plumes, in a profusion of shades and from the very best to medium quality, and a comprehensive selection of fine laces, made-up lace goods, satius, sliks, plushes, velveis, slik hundlerchiers, worsted goods, and, last tun no least, elegant ubsters, cloaks, and domains; in short, all that will delight the eyes of ladies so well known for their refinement of taste as are those of Washington.

Making Cigars by Machinery. The National Capital Cigar Manufacturing Com-pany gave a very satisfactory exhibition of their machines on Saturday last at their office, 1312 machines on Saturday last at their office, 1312 Pennsylvania avenue, in the presence of a number of gentiemen, including representatives of the Internal-Revenue Department, who were invited by Measus. S. J. Fintow and J. E. Schmalz, president and vice-president of the company. Mr. Schmalz is also the inventor. The invention consists of two machines—one a wrapper-cutter and the other a wrapper. They are both ingenious and simple, and can be worked with great celerity, not only reducing the cost of manufacturing eigars by the mpidity with which they do their work, but by greatly economizing in the amount of material used. As stated, the practicability of the machines was demonstrated to the entire assissaction of all present, and there is no doubt but that in a short time they will be adopted by all the leading manufacturers in the country. The company will open their office in New York next week, at 84 Broadway, when they will go into full and active operation.

Moral Education Society. The Moral Education Society of Washington, D. C., held its first public meeting at Lincoln Hall yesterday afternoon, the president, Dr. Caroline paper from Mrs. Mason was read, and addresses were made by Mrs. Shattuck, Mr. Hinckley, and Mary Wright Sewell, of Indianapolis. The meeting closed with singing "Nearer My God to Thee "and a benediction. The hall was well filled and the audience seemed interested in the ideas presented.
